It happened at Chowan Hall, part of Kings Village, which is on Ligon Street near the university. Warrants say that Watkins broke into an apartment where two female students were sleeping. According to Broadcastify radio traffic, which records radio traffic between dispatchers and first responders, the fire alarm went off and the two students left Chowan Hall. NC State sophomore Mercedes Ledbetter was one of the students who was asleep. "I feel safe [since] they caught him," Ledbetter said. "[I] feel good about that." Watkins had allegedly set fire to the bathroom, setting off the fire alarms. Ledbetter said she and her roommate went to wait in a car in the parking lot for someone to turn the alarm off. "Ten minutes later, this guy just comes out of the woods," Ledbetter said. "He was pacing back and forth, and talking like crazy." Broadcastify traffic stated that when police came to turn the fire alarm off, the suspect went inside. Ledbetter said she and her roommate left the door to their room unlocked. "The cop came to turn the alarm off to our building, so we could go back to bed," Ledbetter said. "He [Watkins] then saw the cop and then escaped into our room to hide." Ledbetter said Watkins took off his clothes inside their room and left a pocket knife on the bed. Police searched the area for Watkins, and foot chase took place, before NC State police deployed a Taser to stop him. Warrants indicate that he assaulted three officers, by throwing a fire extinguisher at them, kicking them and grabbing another by the neck. "It was crazy," Ledbetter said. NC State said the officers had minor injuries and did not need treatment. Watkins is charged with five felonies.

According to a spokesperson from FirstHealth, a patient assaulted a nurse on Monday in the emergency department at Moore Regional Hospital in Pinehurst. The nurse, Crystal Thompson, said the patient attacked her then placed her in a chokehold, slammed her head against the floor and broke her leg. "Honestly, looking at her, helping her today, it has broken my heart," said Samantha Thompson, the nurse's daughter. "Seeing her cry the way she has, it literally kills me." The attack comes at a time when healthcare workers are facing increased violence in the workplace. According to court data, charges for felony assault on emergency personnel are up 145% since 2014. "I want to see a lot of change in the healthcare world," Thompson said. "I would love to see them be able to go about this a different way. They need to be there for their nurses, they need to be there for their doctors and their EMS workers." The spokesperson said it is unclear what led up to the attack, but the hospital recently hired a group of police officers to help protect healthcare workers. "This incident highlights a growing concern seen across the country," FirstHealth said in a statement provided to WRAL News. "Violence against healthcare workers is a critical issue, and we prioritize safety and support for our dedicated teams who work tirelessly to care for others." Neither the Thompson family nor Moore Regional Hospital identified the patient that attacked Crystal Thompson. However, court documents obtained by WRAL News identified the patient as 35-year-old Karla Hardy. Hardy was charged with felony assault causing physical injury to emergency personnel and resisting arrest. The consulate is located at 6755 Peachtree Industrial Boulevard on the ground floor of a two-story building. In a news conference in Honduras, Foreign Minister Eduardo Enrique Reina said the guard, identified as Jesus Loera by the Honduran government, was from Mexico and worked for a security company hired by the consulate. The foreign minister expressed condolences to Loera's family and said he is in contact with local and state officials and the State Department, as well as Honduras president Xiomara Castro and U.S. Ambassador Laura Dogu. "We are in contact with Honduran consulate officials and consistent with our obligations under the Vienna Conventions, the Department is committed to the security and safety of diplomatic facilities and the diplomats who work in them," the State Department spokesperson said, adding that attacks and threats against diplomatic facilities are unacceptable. The incident began in the Easy Rental store on Lee Street in Atlanta's West End neighborhood at about 5 p.m. Monday, Fulton Sheriff Pat Labat told media at a news conference outside of Grady Memorial Hospital. According to Labat, two victims ran outside of the store and flagged down the deputy, who was working an off-duty job nearby. Johnson quickly encountered the suspect, who had an assault rifle, according to the sheriff. The two exchanged gunfire and both were hit; Johnson suffered a non-life-threatening injury to his hand, but the suspect was killed. Johnson was taken to a hospital and was released soon after. The GBI will investigate the shooting at the request of the sheriff's office, Labat said, while Atlanta police will investigate the initial incident. The shooting happened just hours after another fatal shooting in the West End neighborhood. Less than three hours earlier, a 19-year-old was shot and killed about a mile away, Atlanta police said. Streets in the area were blocked off as officers searched for a suspect and gathered evidence, but police have not announced any arrests.

But their bodies were found at two different crime scenes in Gwinnett County. The suspect was arrested about 30 miles from Lilburn and charged with murder, Capt. Scott Bennett said. While the case remains under investigation, Bennett said the deaths were domestic in nature and the public is not in danger. In each of the past two years, Lilburn police have investigated one homicide. It's been more than 20 years since the city had a double homicide, Bennett confirmed. In the latest case, the names of the victims and suspect have not been released pending notification of out-of-state family members, police said. The investigation began Sunday evening as a wellness check. Around 5:30 p.m., Lilburn officers went to a home at the request of a caller from out of state, Bennett said. What began as a missing person investigation became a possible homicide Monday, he said. "Lilburn investigators worked through the night into Tuesday throughout the metro Atlanta area obtaining evidence, following leads and conducting interviews," Bennett said. "Their efforts resulted in locating two separate crime scenes Tuesday evening within Gwinnett County and the recovery and identification of two bodies." The suspect was being held Wednesday in the Gwinnett jail. Gwinnett and Duluth police assisted with the investigation. The last time Lilburn detectives investigated a double homicide was Dec. 29, 2004. That's when Khanh Dinh Phan killed his friend Hung Thai, 37, and Thai's 2-year-old son, Hugh, over a gambling debt. Prosecutors sought the death penalty against Phan. But in January 2013, the 49-year-old pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two concurrent life sentences. Patricia Ann Stafford, a 60-year-old Florence resident, was charged with unlawful neglect of a child, police said in a news release. The toddler died Jan. 11, according to the release. Officers were in the 900 block of Kershaw Street for a separate matter when they overheard a disturbance at a nearby home, police said. Stafford "did not seek any type of medical care" for the toddler, an arrest warrant said. The burns were believed to be caused by hot water, police told The State on Wednesday. Muinde Omulama Bull, 26, of Raleigh, was arrested on Jan. 21 by Cary police, according to an arrest warrant obtained by WRAL. He is charged with two counts of cyberstalking. Bull was released on a bond. The offenses were alleged to have occurred in late November. He is due in court for those charges on March 6. Bull was arrested by Durham police on Jan. 13 and charged with misdemeanor stalking. Arrest warrants accuse Bull of placing dead flowers and an Apple AirTag on woman's vehicle in December. He was released on bond. His next court date is March 11. In both court documents for release, it is noted that Bull had been convicted in 2020 of abusive/sexual contact. AirTags are small Apple devices meant for locating misplaced items. They have been used in other cases though, including being used to track down stolen merchandise and illegal products. The devices are also being used to allegedly stalk or unknowingly track people. "Like much technology, it could be used for good or evil," said Jon Sternstein, a cybersecurity expert at Stern Security. "If your iPhone or iOS device detects that an Airtag is traveling with you and it's not near its registered owner, it'll alert you on your phone," Sternstein said. Joey Miles Strickland, a 41-year-old Gaston resident, was charged with first-degree assault and battery, kidnapping and stalking, the sheriff's department said Wednesday in a news release. "The sequence of events between Strickland and the woman started Jan. 14 at a gas station," Lexington County Sheriff Jay Koon said in the release. "He spoke with her at the gas station and asked if she was married. He left the gas station before she did and about 10 minutes later blocked her in her driveway." Strickland tried to pull the woman into his car but she fought him off by hitting him with an unloaded pistol, the sheriff's department said. "Strickland went to the woman's place of employment Jan. 22 and made statements to her co-workers about the woman 'pistol whipping him,' " Koon said. "The victim does not know Strickland. Because his actions at the place of business would cause a reasonable person fear, that prompted the stalking charge." Information about how Strickland knew where the victim lived and worked was not available. Investigators identified Strickland by reviewing security camera footage from the gas station where the initial encounter took place, the sheriff's department said. There was no word about when the incidents were reported to the sheriff's department, but Strickland was arrested Tuesday and booked into the Lexington County Detention Center, according to the release. Arrests made in The Death of Missing Columbia Girl Found Beaten and Burned	Two teenagers have been arrested in the death of a missing South Carolina girl, in a case described as “gruesome” and “monstrous,” the Columbia Police Department announced at a news conference Saturday. Firefighters found the body of Ka’ Niyah Baker, 13, inside an unoccupied home in northeast Columbia shortly before 10:30 p.m. Wednesday after responding to a small structure fire in the 100 block of Cardamon Court.. Baker’s death was a “horrible” homicide, Richland County Coroner Naida Rutherford said. She died from blunt force trauma after being bludgeoned, stabbed and burned. “Brutal. Heinous. Vicious. The man was then spotted on top of the mountain, according to Bankhead. He was not publicly identified. "When the officers approached, he crossed the fence on top of the mountain. Around 6:30 p.m. Monday, North Precinct officers received calls of multiple shots fired in and around the 2300 block of First Avenue North, said Officer Truman Fitzgerald. Officers arrived on the scene when they were flagged by community members who alerted them of an injured person shot who had been pulled into a nearby business. Officers entered the business -- which Fitzgerald declined to name so as not to expose the business owner to potential danger -- to find a man suffering from an apparent gunshot wound. Birmingham Fire and Rescue Service personnel arrived and took him to UAB Hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. Fitzgerald said officers hope to speak to the victim, who is in surgery. "Right now, our detectives are reviewing surveillance footage from nearby business to see what took place that led to this shooting." Police are unsure whether the victim was targeted. Police believe the suspect was on foot when the man was shot inside his vehicle, which was wrecked on the corner of First Avenue North and 23rd Street North. No suspects were in custody as of 9 p.m. Thursday, but since the shooting occurred in a heavily populated commercial area "those surveillance cameras will prove vital to this investigation," Fitzgerald said.

DeKalb police were called just after 10 p.m. to The Villas at Panthersville, a troubled apartment complex on the 2900 block of Panthersville Road near Flat Shoals Road and I-285. There, officers found a 24-year-old woman who was shot in the leg and stomach, and her niece who was suffering from a gunshot wound to her ankle, DeKalb police spokesperson Lt. The Villas at Panthersville, formerly Hidden Villas, is among 275 of the metro area's persistently dangerous complexes, according to The Atlanta Journal-Constitution's "Dangerous Dwellings" investigation that looked into serious crimes, lax maintenance and other hazards in Atlanta neighborhoods. Last February, police were called to the complex for a shooting and found 40-year-old Rodrigus Hull dead in the parking lot. In September 2023, a resident of the complex, Javonte Forts, was arrested after police said he shot and killed a suspected intruder who tried to take some of his belongings. From 2017 through July 2023, police also reported 171 crimes at the 2929 Panthersville Road address, including two homicides, 23 aggravated assaults, three robberies, four rapes and two arsons. Nikki Barin Baena, co-director of Siembra NC, shared her concern by what she said is a rise of scams targeting immigrants. "This is kind of a perfect storm what's happening right now and it's opening up opportunities for people who are not doing any kind of law enforcement to take advantage of people in terrible ways," Baena said. The grassroots organization, based in Greensboro, focuses on defending the rights of immigrants. Police didn't specify the race or immigration status of the victim involved. As false reports of ICE raids in the area ramped up over the weekend, Baena's not surprised by allegations of intimidation through impersonation. "People wouldn't be surprised that an ICE agent acted in an inappropriate way because they often do act in inappropriate ways to get information out of people," she said. Baena acknowledges the sense of fears some immigrants have with ICE but is on a mission to make them aware of their rights if an authentic agent does show up. Security video shows two people walk into the store, before having a brief conversation in the aisles. One thief then calls the clerk over to her, while the other sneaks behind the register, and grabs a lockbox with $20,000 in cash inside. Police say the key had been left in the lock. So far, no arrests have been made. Cary police say no similar crimes have been reported recently, and believe this was an isolated incident. The store’s owner, Esmeralda Angel, says the thieves seemed like professionals. “When we looked on the cameras, it looked like it was not their first time doing it,” Angel said. La Esmeralda Tienda has been open for about a year. A grocery and convenience store, it stocks both fresh fruits and vegetables, and a wide variety of products from Central and South America. Angel says she’s put everything she has back into the store. “I don’t know why they would target a small business,” said Angel. “Because, you know, we work day and night just to make sure this runs ok.” According to Angel, $18,650 of the stolen cash belonged to Rayo Transfer, a wire transfer company that La Esmeralda Tienda acted as a middle man for. Angel says the store will now have to pay Rayo Transfer back, a big bill for a small business. “It’s just a really big hit for us,” said Angel. Malachi Mitchell, 21, was killed Jan. 29. Douglas sheriff's office spokesman Lt. Col. "After the seller received payment and the transaction was completed, a physical struggle broke out inside the vehicle over the control of the purchased firearm," Pounds said. "During the altercation, the purchaser, who was also the driver of the vehicle, produced a second firearm and fatally shot Malachi Mitchell." The driver sped away from the scene after the shooting, believing he was being "set up and possibly followed," Pounds added. Officials were able to confirm that the driver was in contact with someone during the incident and expressed "fear that he had been set up and that he was being followed." Deputies said they stopped the driver a few minutes later for erratic driving near Thornton Road and I-20, and that's when they discovered Mitchell's body in the passenger seat. Millbrook Police Chief P.K. Johnson says 37-year-old Joshua Williams of Millbrook surrendered to police on Wednesday, February 5. Johnson says Williams was charged with 14 counts of theft of property in the 4th degree after warrants were retained by Walmart loss prevention workers. Johnson says Williams has been released on bond. Johnson says Williams is alleged to have entered the store several time from December 2024 through January 2025, each time purchasing various items. Johnson says loss prevention workers told police that Williams would scan some items, while failing to scan other items and not paying for those unscanned items. "With the advent of today's technology, most businesses have installed high-end surveillance equipment to protect their property, as well as their employees and customers," Johnson said. "Most, if not all, major retail businesses also employ loss prevention staff to monitor this equipment and patrol the store in an attempt to direct responding law enforcement officers when the crimes are actually being committed. Even in instances, such as this alleged offender's case, you may make it out of the business and avoid being apprehended at that time, but at some point chances are that you'll be identified, warrants of arrest will be obtained and eventually you'll be apprehended, placed under arrest and face criminal charges for your actions."

Millbrook Police Chief P.K. Johnson said that officers were called to a home in the 2700 block of Englenook Road on Saturday, February 8, to a possible burglary in progress. Officers were told that a person had been spotted on a surveillance camera, entering the backyard of the home, having jumped the fence, and was going through a shed. "The only people not benefitting are those who are committing these crimes, to whom I'd say this, People work hard to have their property and are willing to take the necessary steps to protect their property. Our officers stand at the ready to apprehend, arrest and prosecute those who continue to roll the dice in committing these crimes."

The footage showed a white pickup truck carrying lumber pull into an alley between Second Avenue South and Third Avenue South, between 18th and 19th streets. At least five men got out of the truck, one of them grabbing a large black garbage bag from the truck's bed. The bag was then tossed into the dumpster. Cornelius said she believes the men were construction workers. "We are looking for these folks," she said. Cornelius said a citizen climbed into the dumpster and saved the life of Patches. She also thanked Ken Foreman of the Birmingham Housing Authority, Birmingham police Sgt. Heather Campbell and CAPS officer Ryan Smith, all of whom she said, "worked their tails off to save the animal's life." "I'm tired of these stories and I'm really tired of these cases," Cornelius said. "We are going to have to start holding people accountable for this type of behavior if we want it to stop."

Toshio Takashima, 87, was found unconscious and severely injured on Feb. 21 inside of a stolen 2017 Ford Mustang after it crashed along Interstate 95 near Four Oaks. Authorities took Takashima to an area hospital, where he died on March 24, one day shy of his 88th birthday. Authorities are investigating the case as a homicide. According to court documents, the North Carolina State Highway Patrol initially charged Takashima with possession of a stolen car and other traffic-related misdemeanors, but the charges were dismissed. Speaking on the phone Wednesday, SHP spokesperson Chris Knox said the charges were dropped because Takashima's "injuries were not consistent with the crash investigation." A motion from March 6 reveals the state's investigation found that Takashima was instead the victim of a carjacking. WRAL News asked both the State Highway Patrol [SHP] and the State Bureau of Investigation [SBI] when and where Takashima was carjacked. Neither agency provided a time or place. Because of the inconsistencies in Takashima's injuries, the SBI said it took over the case on March 17. A collision report filed by the SHP listed Takashima as the passenger. Knox couldn't say how or why Takashima ended up in the Mustang. However, the State Bureau of Investigation's news release on Tuesday stated that Takashima was found in the driver's seat of the Mustang on Feb. 21. The collision report filed by the SHP lists the driver of the stolen car as "unknown." The report states the Mustang belonged to Peak Property and Casualty, not Takashima. According to court documents, Jacarri Powell jumped on the back of a female runner on Lake Lynn Trail and made a thrusting gesture. Another woman said she was assaulted by Powell minutes earlier. Katie Disilva says she was walking her dog around 4 p.m. on Wednesday when she encountered Powell, just 30 minutes before he allegedly assaulted the other victim. "I heard footsteps coming right up behind me and I turned around quickly. I saw this guy inches away from me with his arm raised in the air like he was going to hit me," Disilva said. "So I ducked because I thought I was about to get hit and I started screaming. "I said, 'Oh my God, what's wrong with you?' and he didn't respond. He stared at me dead faced." Disilva said she screamed until Powell ran away. Once he was gone, she snapped a photo of him from behind and posted it online. "I got a bunch of responses almost instantly from other women telling me the same, almost the same story about things that he did to them, he chased them, he lunged at them," said Disilva. After Disilva filed a police report, she learned Powell was arrested for assaulting another woman on the same day and at the same trail. Police charged Powell with sexual battery, but Disilva told WRAL she doesn't know when she will feel safe enough to visit the trail again. Raleigh police is encouraging trail goers to exercise caution.

Michael Wayne Edwards, 63, of Charlotte, turned himself in Friday morning on charges of third-degree assault and battery and cruelty to a child, Faile said in a statement. Deputies started an investigation after several students reported to Buford Elementary School officials that on Feb. 27, Edwards grabbed and pulled the boy before shoving him into the wall for not following activity rules, the statement said. The boy was not seriously injured, Faile said. Buford is in northern Lancaster County near the North Carolina state line. "It is unfortunate this incident occurred," Faile said. "Parents expect those who teach and supervise our children in the school setting to nurture and protect them, not commit assaults against them. It's encouraging to know these young student witnesses know the 'see something, say something' rule and reported this incident." The Lancaster County School District put Edwards on administrative leave, according to officials. In a statement, Lancaster schools superintendent Raashad Fitzpatrick said the schools will continue to cooperate with law enforcement. "Lancaster County School District has built a reputation for excellence, and we will continue to focus on our students' success and ensuring the safety of all students," Fitzpatrick said. Both charges against Edwards are misdemeanors that will be prosecuted by the S.C. Attorney General's Office in magistrate court, said Doug Barfield, spokesman for the sheriff's office. The charges carry a maximum of 30 days in jail or a fine for a conviction, officials said. Edwards was released Friday after a first court appearance.

Nickerson, who has ties to both Orange and Durham counties, is accused of firing a weapon at a woman during a domestic disturbance on Thursday, Feb. 27. Nickerson faces two felony charges: assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and kidnapping. Investigators also obtained three misdemeanor warrants for domestic violence, assault on a female and injury to personal property. On Feb. 27 at 11 a.m., Chapel Hill police officers and Orange County deputies responded to the 100 block of Dragonfly Trail off Old Lystra Road in response to reports of a domestic disturbance. Investigators interviewed the victim, who had fled in her car, as well as other witnesses, and learned the couple had initially been arguing outside. When the woman tried to leave, authorities said the man tried to stop her. When those efforts failed, authorities said he went inside the house to get a weapon, fired several shots at her, then retreated back inside. The area was evacuated because law enforcement officers believed the man was still inside the residence. After calling in additional help and using a drone to search the residence, they learned the suspect was no longer inside the home and had likely fled.

378	3/1/25		Noah Feit	The State	SC		Georgetown County	Deep Creek Dr	Arson	South Carolina Man Charged with Arson After Three Separate Fires Were Found, Officials Say	[3/10/2025] A South Carolina man was recently charged with arson after three separate blazes were discovered, according to the state's Forestry Commission. Windell McDaniel, a 63-year-old Hemingway resident, was charged with three counts of arson in Georgetown County, the South Carolina Forestry Commission said Monday in a news release. "None of the fires McDaniel is alleged to have ignited were related to any other (recent) Georgetown County wildfires ... one of which grew to 130 acres and threatened homes on Arcadia Plantation Drive, prompting a days-long response from Forestry Commission and local (firefighters)," officials said. A statewide burn ban was put in place March 2, and South Carolina Gov. Henry McMaster declared a state of emergency the following day because of wildfires that raged across the Palmetto State. In fact, the S.C. Forestry Commission's burn ban in Georgetown County was only lifted Sunday. McDaniel deliberately set three fires with an improvised incendiary device, according to the release. The fires were started along Deep Creek Drive, which connects S.C. 261 and Barnhill Road, the S.C. Forestry Commission said. That's about 6 miles southeast of downtown Hemingway, and more than 40 miles west of Myrtle Beach. Deep Creek Drive is also 30 miles north of the wildfires in the Arcadia Plantation Drive area. On March 1, a S.C. Forestry Commission officer responded to a call about a woods fire and discovered three separate fires along the road, according to the release. Near one of the fires, the officer found a soft drink bottle containing what was believed to be kerosene along with a rag that also smelled of kerosene, S.C. Forestry Commission officials said. During an investigation, camera footage showed a truck registered to McDaniel in the area around the time the fires were started.

Millbrook Police Chief P.K. Johnson says 18-year-old Dokata Hollinger of Millbrook is charged with three counts of rape in the first degree and sodomy in the first degree. "I am extremely limited with regard to specific information that I can disseminate regarding this case due to the age of the alleged victim," Johnson said. "Any time our department investigates a sexual assault complaint, our primary concern is for the victim's well-being and their rights, particularly when that victim is a minor child. "It is my understanding based on the circumstances of this case, our detectives have requested that an Aniah's Law hearing be scheduled, at which time a judge will determine the alleged offender's bond amount, or if bond may be denied in this case, which will be based on evidence presented to the court, as it pertains to this case."

On Sunday a woman travelling on Winstead Avenue in Rocky Mount attempted to merge lanes. 66-year-old Billy Boyd Vick Jr got agitated and proceeded to follow her. "He raced up beside her on the right side and then shot at her vehicle with the Glock 45," said K.S. Howald, a state trooper. Vick was arrested and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. On Wednesday, a similar incident occurred in Wilson's Mills when another woman encountered an angry driver while traveling on US-70. "I guess she got into some kind of conflict with another driver who went up alongside her and pulled out a handgun, an unknown type, and fired a shot," said Sgt. Raymond Barton from Wilson's Mills Police. The third shooting this week happened on Friday on I-40 near Cary. The shooting killed a 35-year-old man and a Durham man has been charged with his murder. Both Sgt. Barton and Trooper Howald recommend drivers refrain from engaging in altercations. "If somebody's acting aggressively, try to keep some distance from them, call 911 immediately. Because if it's happening and it's coming through town, we can intervene," said Sgt. Barton. "It is not worth going to prison or like in this case if you have a concealed carry. It's not worth getting it revoked or perhaps getting yourself in even bigger trouble," Howald said. Authorities are still searching for the suspect in both the Wilson's Mills shooting.

It is not clear if those involved in the shooting attended the event. Later, in the early morning hours Sunday, Diaz and the victim were “at a house party with others for prom night,” according to the warrant. Diaz told police he feared the victim “wanted to jump him” due to “a previous incident.” Diaz told police he walked away then returned, at which point the victim and his friend began to follow him, the warrant says. Diaz pointed his gun at the victim, who then lifted his shirt to show he did not have a weapon on him, according to the warrant. Even though Diaz did not see a gun, he told police he shot the teen twice in the chest because he was “known to carry guns.” The charges against Diaz include murder, possession of a firearm during a crime and aggravated assault with a weapon. Diaz was born in 2006, according to records from the Cobb County Jail, where he was booked without bond on Sunday. The Cobb County School District said resources will be available “to help students process this difficult news.” “We are heartbroken by the tragic loss of a former Campbell student this past weekend,” the statement said. “Student safety is always at the top of our minds, and we urge families to review our safety measures and report any safety concerns immediately.”

Jim Massey, owner of one of Montgomery's oldest and most trusted businesses, said he is thankful to be alive after the terrifying ordeal. Massey was alone in his office around 6 p.m. when he heard a loud crash. As he stepped out to investigate, he was confronted by a man rushing down the hallway. "This guy comes walking fast, jogging down the hallway, and said, 'We've accidentally run a car into your front door,'" Massey said. "But then he got closer. I realized he had on a mask, goggles, and a hat. And about that time, there was a second one behind him. They both grabbed me, and behind them were two more guys. They said, 'Let's go to the safe. Take us to the safe.' And I said, 'OK.' They had a gun. There were four of them. I did not have a gun—probably, thank goodness." The suspects were wearing hard hats and reflective construction vests, Massey said. He told them the combination to the safe was stored on his phone in his office. "He just reared back, and that's where this came from," Massey said, pointing to a swollen, black-and-blue eye. "He chipped my tooth and cut my chin. So then I'm in a squatted position trying to figure out what the heck just happened. And as I'm kind of half kneeling, he puts the gun on top of my head and said, 'If you don't tell us the combination, I'm going to blow your blankety-blank head off, and I'll do it.' My life didn't flash before my eyes, but my wife and two kids—they were the three people that came to mind." After finally bringing Massey his phone, the suspects forced him to unlock the safe. The driver, identified as 49-year-old Bryan Myers of Temple, stepped out of the car and began arguing with Hamilton, according to dash camera provided by police. Myers ultimately made it into the driver's seat and took off, reaching speeds of approximately 60 mph while Hamilton was left clinging to the moving vehicle. Dash camera video shows the moment the SUV pulls off with Hamilton hanging onto the door, leaving the officer's patrol car behind. Officials said Myers repeatedly kicked at the officer's leg to prevent her from applying the brake, even attempting to shove her out of the car. Despite the ordeal, Officer Hamilton managed to gain control and bring the vehicle to a stop. But the struggle didn't end there. Myers allegedly ran off into nearby woods after, reportedly dropping a pistol from his waistband as he ran. He eventually surrendered and was taken into custody. Police later discovered ecstasy pills in his possession. Myers now faces multiple felony and misdemeanor charges, including assault on a peace officer, possession of a controlled substance, illegal firearm possession and DUI. Atlanta Police said the shooting on March 12 unfolded on York Avenue, where shattered glass, fresh dirt and crime scene tape marked the aftermath. Few witnessed the shooting, but many heard it. "It was like little Vietnam, man. There were at least six or seven people shooting," one witness said, who didn't want to be identified. One man who captured the scene on video described the barrage of gunfire just outside his apartment at Oglethorpe Place. "It sounded like a cartel fight over territory," he said. "In about a span of 10 seconds, there were at least 30 shots. And then I heard a loud boom." He later learned that that boom was caused by a power pole crashing to the ground, knocking out electricity in the area. "The next thing you know, the power goes out," he said. The same man who didn't want to be identified since the shooters haven't been arrested expressed frustration, noting that bullets pierced the walls of his apartment building. "A bullet struck her window, came through her wall," he said, describing the close call. This latest shooting comes just a week after a double murder at the Oglethorpe Place Apartments, the complex adjacent to York Avenue, leaving neighbors even more on edge. According to Atlanta police, a man and his girlfriend were found dead inside their apartment during a welfare check. Family members identified the victims as Marvin Spencer and Henrietta Russell. Spencer's daughter had requested the welfare check after being unable to contact them. When police arrived, they found the apartment barricaded and a foul odor coming from inside. At the home, deputies made contact with a man and his 16-year-old son. Deputies determined that the teen ate marijuana gummies that possibly were laced with a hallucinogen, and he was taken to the sheriff's office headquarters to be interviewed. During the interview, the teen told deputies that he began "feeling hot" after eating the gummies, and when he entered the kitchen, he believed that he saw two individuals "wearing white masks," according to the release. Although the teen thought the individuals were in masks, their faces actually were not covered, the sheriff's office said. The teen then said that he went to his father's bedroom and got a shotgun, cocked it, and returned to the kitchen where he shot one of the individuals and also fired at the other who was then running away. The teen will be charged with murder, attempted murder and possession of a weapon during a violent offense, the sheriff's office said. There was no word if the teen's father, or anyone else, would face charges. Information about the victims' connection, if any, to the teen and his father was not available. Around 10 p.m. on Friday, deputies with the Nash County Sheriff's Office responded to a home on Savage Road in Spring Hope. A 911 caller, later identified as Zachary Bryant, had reported a theft from his vehicle. In a news conference, Nash County Sheriff's Office said Bryant told deputies he was inside his home when his dogs started barking. When he went outside, he saw two "light-skinned males" leave his truck and enter a red vehicle near the intersection of N.C. Highway 581 and Savage Road. Deputies said Bryant went back into his home, put on clothes and retrieved a handgun. As he searched his truck, he noticed his tool box was opened and some tools were missing. Around 10:09 p.m., Bryant reported the incident to deputies and a short time later, noticed a car matching the description of the car he saw. As the vehicle turned onto Savage Road, deputies said Bryant fired multiple shots from the shoulder of the road at the vehicle to disable it. As the vehicle passed him, he hit the 15-year-old driver in the head. The teen shot in the head was taken to WakeMed in critical condition. "Property is never an excuse to use deadly force," Nash County Sheriff Keith Stone said. Deputies arrested and charged Bryant with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and inflicting serious injury. Bryant appeared in court Monday, where a judge granted him a $500,000 bond. A next court date was set for April 10. Deputies said three other teenagers, a 15-year-old, a 16-year-old and a 14-year-old, were also in the vehicle during the shooting. Deputies added the juveniles will not be identified, as per North Carolina state law, and charges against them are pending.

Acworth Police say a two-year-old girl was nearly ripped from her mother's lap on March 18 as they were riding in a handicap scooter at the Walmart on Cobb Parkway near Jim Owens Road. "For me, it would terrify me as well," said Sgt. Eric Mistretta with Acworth Police. "It would be very scary because I wouldn't want my kid to be like that either or attempted to be kidnapped. I understand it's pretty scary." Mahendra Patel, 56, is in custody and facing charges including simple assault, simple battery, and kidnapping. According to the Acworth Police Department, officers responded to the scene and the mother told officers that a man approached her asking about Tylenol before suddenly trying to pull her child away. Detectives used surveillance footage, FLOCK cameras, and witness statements to identify Patel and arrest him on March 21. He is being held without bond. Acworth Police thanked Cobb County detectives for their help in identifying the suspect. The investigation is still active. "This could have been a whole different situation if that mother didn't fight back to get that child," said Sgt. Mistretta. "Who knows what we could've been dealing with. We could've been dealing with an injured child or even worse, the death of a child."

Lorenzo Edwards, 42, of Selma, was charged with one count of murder, two counts of attempted murder and two counts of first-degree domestic violence following the Wednesday shooting spree, Dallas County court records showed. According to charging documents, the spree began when Edwards shot his 43-year-old ex-wife in the face and their 14-year-old son in the head around 6:43 p.m. Wednesday at Edwards' home in the 2800 block of Summerfield Road in Selma. Edwards' ex-wife identified him as the shooter while she was being put in an ambulance and told authorities she believed her ex-husband was headed toward the home she lived in with their son. He then pistol-whipped a fourth victim, whom Edwards tried to shoot but the gun jammed, according to charging documents. Edwards killed the fifth victim, identified in charging documents as Peggy Ratliff Small, "by means of a lethal instrument," court records stated. Grantham told WSFA that Small was 70 years old and was targeted by Edwards because she was on her phone in her yard. Edwards believed she was reporting the shootings to police, the sheriff said. Edwards allegedly bludgeoned Small to death with an engine block from his vehicle, Grantham said. A 17-year-old is also charged with murder after he allegedly hit the 15-year-old boy with his vehicle, according to DeKalb County police. Officers responded around 3:45 p.m. Saturday to the 6900 block of Watkins Glen Road for a person shot. The quiet street is near South Deshon Road and Mountain Oaks Parkway. Shortly after getting there, officers were told that two people with gunshot wounds were taken to a hospital. “One of them, a 19-year-old man, sadly died of his injuries. The other, a 15-year-old boy, is currently being treated,” police spokesperson Blaine Clark said in a statement. Their identities were not released. The incident started when the 15-year-old and 19-year-old started to argue at a nearby gas station “over an ongoing dispute,” Clark said. The teens eventually left the gas station and went back together to Watkins Glen Road, located in the Mountain Oaks neighborhood, Clark said. At that point, police said the 17-year-old “drove up and hit the 15-year-old with his vehicle.” The 17-year-old and his passenger then got out of the car and the teen who was struck opened fire, according to his warrant. “Investigators (then) determined the 15-year-old and 19-year-old got into a shootout,” Clark said. 529	3/23/25		Dan Kane	The News & Observer	NC	Raleigh		Gorman St	Hit-and-Run	4 Dead After Three Accidents in The Triangle Early Sunday, Police Say	Three fatal crashes — two in Raleigh and one in Durham — early Sunday morning left four people dead, according to police. The first happened shortly before 2 a.m. on Interstate 85 South near the U.S. 15-501 interchange, Durham police said. A 2008 Nissan Pathfinder driven by Claudia Azucena Campos Lopez, 39, of Hillsborough, went off the right side of the roadway and struck an unoccupied 2013 Kia Optima parked on the shoulder. Lopez died at the scene, police said. “Speed appears to be a factor in this crash,” Durham police said in a news release. Two hours after that accident, Raleigh police responded to two unrelated fatal crashes. Raleigh police confirmed that a head-on collision on Interstate 40 near the Gorman Street exit killed two people, and was caused by a wrong-way driver. The crash shut down that section of the expressway for four hours. Jonathan Perry, 27, was driving a 2006 Lexus IS250 west in the eastbound lanes of I-40, Raleigh police said, when his vehicle collided with a 2024 Volkswagen Taos being driven by Alaina Mathews, 37. Both drivers died at the scene, police said. Crash scene evidence suggested Mathews attempted to swerve to avoid impact. The preliminary investigation indicates Perry had turned onto I-40 from Gorman Street, police said. “Mr. Perry had the odor of alcohol coming from his person and an open container was located at his feet inside of the car,” a Raleigh police news release said. The second accident on Gorman Street near Kaplan Drive killed one person, Raleigh police said. Pierre-Louis de Mourgues (23) was traveling southwest on Gorman Street between Kaplan Drive and Brent Road on an e-scooter, police said. “The preliminary investigation indicates that a vehicle traveling southwest on Gorman Street struck Mr. Mourgues from behind and drove him down the road.”

According to the Lenoir County Sheriff's Office, Lonnie Cordarius Mason, 34, was airlifted to ECU Health in Greenville after his 2011 white BMW crashed head-on with an SUV around 10:30 a.m. Deputies said Mason hit three total vehicles in the crash as he was driving north in the southbound lane of N.C. The 22-year-old faces multiple counts of first-degree arson, fourth-degree arson and reckless conduct, according to Floyd County police. The Atlanta Journal-Constitution is not naming the woman because she has not yet been booked. Authorities said she is in the hospital awaiting a mental examination. The fire was started Sunday and was fully contained by Monday. It threatened dozens of homes, causing the evacuation of several families in multiple neighborhoods in the Armuchee area, a community just north of Rome. According to a police incident report, officers got a call about the forest fire around noon Sunday. When they arrived to the area, they found flames billowing up to 10 feet high and spreading quickly through the trees. A young woman with soot covering her face and arms told police that she started the fire by burning pine straw with a lighter, the report states. "When I asked her why she had done this, she claimed she was angry at her dad," the responding officer noted. "I could see that (she) was upset and scared about what she had done. She appeared remorseful and was crying." The officer then asked if she'd intended for the fire to spread, to which she replied, "no," the report states. Due to concerns for her mental health, the woman was taken to a psychiatric hospital. Once the fire was put out, the extensive damage became clear. Approximately 195 acres were charred. One house received damage to its roof, and a small shed, containing a lawn mower, generator, flat-screen TV and other tools, was completely destroyed. Another set of properties was also damaged, including 75% of a house field house. Floyd County

554	3/27/25	5:30 PM	Caroline Silva & Taylor Croft	The Atlanta Journal-Constitution	GA		DeKalb County	Glenwood Rd	Shooting	13-Year-Old Boy Killed in Shooting at DeKalb Home, Police Say	A teenager is dead after a shooting Thursday afternoon at a home in DeKalb County, police said. Officers were called to the 4800 block of Glenwood Road regarding a “young teen” shot at least once, DeKalb police spokesperson Blaine Clark said. The area is just outside of I-285 and off Covington Highway. The medical examiner’s office on Friday identified the boy as Derron Woody, 13. “Despite his bright future, Derron’s life was senselessly cut short by an act of violence,” a GoFundMe campaign started by Ron Woody to amass funds for the teen’s funeral stated. Derron was taken to a hospital with critical injuries at around 5:30 p.m. Thursday, police said. About four hours later, Clark told The Atlanta Journal-Constitution he had died. Derrick Woody told Channel 2 Action News that his son was found on the front steps of their home. “It’s just, you know, hard to think about it right now. I loved my son,” Derrick Woody told the news station. He was a former student at DeKalb Alternative School, a district spokesman confirmed. A crisis intervention team is available to provide grief counseling for students and staff, Principal Terrence Harvey said in a letter to parents. “It is with great sadness that I share the news of the sudden passing of Derron Woody, one of our former students,” Harvey said in the letter, provided to the AJC by the district. “The entire DeKalb Alternative School family extends our heartfelt sympathy to Derron’s family, friends and relatives.” Clark said investigators believe the suspect and victim knew each other, but did not provide more information about their relationship. Clark confirmed investigators were speaking to a person of interest.

The officers were patrolling the 600 block of 23rd Avenue East about 6:30 p.m. Monday after gunfire had been reported in that area the day before. While on patrol, they spotted a male who was rapidly walking between two houses. As they drove past the house, said Tuscaloosa Violent Crimes Unit Capt. Jack Kennedy, they saw the male standing in a “semi-concealed” position, wearing a mask and brandishing a gun. The suspect fired at least eight rounds in rapid succession at the officers, who accelerated and drove past the suspect. The suspect was then observed running away and jumping fences, Kennedy said. “The officers did not stop, or otherwise make any contact with the suspect, and were merely driving along the street when they were fired upon,” Kenned said. “The officers did not return fire.” The bullets did not hit the police vehicle but did hit a nearby home. “The angle of the strikes, as well as the officers dash cam video confirmed that the suspect was firing towards the officers’ vehicle,” Kennedy said. Police set up a perimeter and began searching for the suspect. The Violent Crimes Unit was called out to assume the investigation. Only investigators and supervisors not affiliated with TPD were involved in the investigation, Kennedy said. After speaking with witnesses from the neighborhood, as well as reviewing the officers’ dash cam and body cam, and multiple sources of surveillance video, a 15-year-old boy was developed as a suspect. The teen suspect and the alleged gun he used were located later Monday night. The suspect is charged through juvenile court with two counts of attempted murder and shooting into an occupied vehicle. Kennedy said the 15-year-old is also suspected of firing shots in the area on Sunday.

Raleigh police say they found Lisa McIntyre in a car that didn't belong to her around 6:30 a.m. Wednesday morning. She's also accused of damaging glass solar lamps on a neighbor's property. At least three different households have a video showing what appears to be McIntyre knocking loudly on doors overnight and shaking doorknobs. Other videos show the suspect appearing to throw pottery off front porches. "I can't imagine waking up at five o'clock in the morning to someone pounding on my door and then, you know, doing the things that she's done," said Jordan Chambliss, a concerned resident who lived nearby. "It needs to be taken seriously," WRAL News looked into McIntyre's criminal history and discovered this week wasn't the first time she's been charged with similar offenses. Earlier this year, she was arrested twice for second-degree trespassing. In 2023, she once again faced charges for breaking into a motor vehicle and injury to property damage. "It seemed to be a string of very random houses in a certain area that she was going to," Chambliss said. "So there's not really a pattern and there's a lot of, there's a ton of houses in the area." McIntyre appeared in court Thursday, where a judge increased her bond. WRAL asked Raleigh police how they work to stop repeat offenders. They said they utilize their ACORNS unit, a team available to help any Raleigh resident in crisis to prevent a future crisis for that person, by connecting them to mental health resources.

The pair also faces multiple charges of cruelty to animals and failure to bury livestock after authorities found roughly 30 snakes – six of them dead – and a crocodile inside the Oneonta home. The woman's daughter was found wounded, and the woman's boyfriend was also found dead on the scene with what authorities said appeared to be a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Clarke County deputies were dispatched Sunday morning to the Mary Aquilla Road home of 39-year-old Ashley Danielle Howell. That residence is in the Whatley community. Sheriff DeWayne Smith on Monday said deputies were called to Howell's home on a welfare check. Deputies found Howell and her son, Jayden, dead on the scene. Howell's daughter, 11-year-old Jayln, was still alive and rushed to Grove Hill Hospital before being transferred to a trauma center in Mobile. Smith said she remains in serious condition. Howell's boyfriend, 43-year-old Edward Bernard Raine, was also found dead at the home. Smith said he sustained what is believed to be a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. "This tragedy is still under investigation," Smith said. "We ask that you please focus your prayers on Ms. Ashley's daughter and her recovery." "In addition," he said, "please remember the family and community who are still mourning this loss." The sheriff said the Clarke County School Board is providing counseling at the schools where the children attended. The investigation is ongoing by the Clarke County Sheriff's Office with assistance from the Grove Hill, Jackson and Thomasville police departments, as well as the First Judicial Major Crimes Task Force. Court records show Raine was arrested last year for threatening to shoot and kill Howell, but the charges were later dismissed. He had multiple domestic violence arrests involving different women dating back to at least 2007, records show.

Video obtained by WRAL News shows a fight breaking out on the corner of Franklin and Columbia streets. Investigators said an argument between people on a sidewalk led to the fight. Police said 22-year-old Anas Hammood fired a gun into the air before leaving. No one was injured, and Hammood was arrested shortly afterwards. A woman, who declined to share her identity, told WRAL News she was very disturbed by the incident. "Obviously it's very disturbing around that area," the woman said, adding that her daughter lived a few blocks away from the scene. "I feel like this is a very volatile area and there's not enough of a police presence." Early Saturday morning, police said someone carjacked a student in a parking deck near the same intersection, and another person was carjacked days earlier in Carrboro. The woman told WRAL News she wants to see more officers on patrol at the intersection. Hammood is charged with firing a weapon in town limits and going armed to the terror of people. WRAL News reached out to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and asked why officials did not send out an alert about the incident on Franklin Street. The school said there was no ongoing threat to campus once Hammood was arrested. "No Alert Carolina was sent in this case because there was no ongoing threat to campus," a spokesperson said. "The suspect was arrested approximately five minutes after a Chapel Hill police officer responded to the incident."

Winderweedle said the orange Dodge Charger was found in a neighboring jurisdiction and is being processed by detectives. An investigation showed that the vehicle had been stolen, and Baker admitted to using an electronic programming device to also take another vehicle, the sheriff's office said. Further information about the electronic device, and how it worked, was not available. A record check revealed Baker was driving with a suspended license, her third offense, according to the release. During a search of the vehicle investigators found meth and merchandise believed to have been shoplifted from a local business, the sheriff's office said. Baker was taken into custody and taken to the Sumter County Sheriff's Office Detention Center, according to the release. Bond was set at $54,225 on the combined charges, Sumter County court records show. No bond was posted for the grand larceny and drug charges, according to court records. Baker was out on bond when she was arrested Tuesday. On Oct. 17, 2024, Baker was charged with possession, conceal, sell., or dispose of stolen vehicle (value $10,000 or more) and possession

The Jefferson County Coroner's Office identified the victim Friday as Letaris Demonds-Lapri Franklin. He was 27. North Precinct officers were dispatched just after 5 p.m. Thursday to a call of a person shot in the 2100 block of 29th Avenue North. When they arrived, a family member of the victim told them he had not been heard from the entire day. The family member became concerned, broke the door down and found Franklin dead inside. According to the coroner's office, Franklin was killed at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. He was officially pronounced dead at 5:44 p.m. Thursday. Officer Truman Fitzgerald said police had been dispatched to the apartment complex Wednesday night on a report of shots fired. "Multiple officers from North Precinct responded, got out of their patrol cars, walked this complex as well as the adjacent complex," Fitzgerald said. "They spoke to community members to try to pinpoint where the shots came from. They walked the area where they believed the shots came from." Police on Wednesday, however, did not find any sign of someone injured. Fitzgerald said numerous shots were fired. "Detectives are trying to determine if the shooting happened inside the apartment or were there shots fired and a bullet traveled into the victim's apartment and struck him," he said. "That's the unknown right now." There was gunfire damage to the victim's apartment, but Fitzgerald said it's too soon to know if the shots were fired from inside or outside. Multiple community members have been cooperating with investigators.

The incident occurred at 425 Williams Drive, according to the Marietta Police Department, an address that corresponds to the Lakeside at Town Center apartments. Marietta Police Public Information Officer Chuck McPhilamy said it was “not a common occurrence” for this kind of situation to happen at this complex, and it began just after 10 p.m. with “multiple callers calling at the same time” to report gunfire. Police at this point, McPhilamy said, “have more questions than we have answers.” What they’ve pieced together so far is that evidence suggests there were at least three different weapons being fired, based on shell casings found at the complex, at multiple sites inside the complex. Several vehicles and apartments were struck, with one resident reporting a bullet came in through her window — but police said fortunately nobody who lives at the complex appears to have been shot. The two people who separately showed up at Wellstar Kennestone Hospital with gunshot wounds are believed to have been connected to the incident in some way, and additional people who showed up with them are being questioned. Meanwhile, the vehicle that fled the scene, a black BMW, was briefly chased by police before it crashed at the intersection of Polk Street and Mountain View Road. Police described it losing control, hitting a power poll and rolling over at the intersection. The five men inside were taken into custody for questioning, and “multiple handguns and a rifle” were found in the car. Between the five

655	4/11/25		Willie Daniely	WRAL News	NC		Wake County		Animal Cruelty	Broke Down Crying': Raleigh Family's Cat Fighting for His Life After Being Shot	A family in Wake County is searching for answers Thursday after they say someone shot their cat nearly a week earlier in Raleigh. Cheryl Privette said her family adopted their cat, a tuxedo cat named Henry, five years ago. According to Privette, Henry did not come inside when he disappeared on April 11. Privette told WRAL News that she left the garage door open in case he returned. In the morning, Privette found the cat lying inside. "I kind of had to pick him up and get him in the house. And he just plopped down. And then I looked and I had blood on my hand," Privette said. Privette said she took Henry to the animal hospital. Staff at the hospital told her the next day that someone had shot him. "I just broke down crying," Privette said. "I could not believe that somebody would shoot Henry." Henry suffered damage to his back legs and claws, as well as fluid in his lungs, due to the shooting. The damage from the bullet, which Privette said is still inside Henry, could cost more. The family said they have already spent over $6,000 on Henry's medical care, but had to pull him out of the animal hospital because they couldn't afford to keep him. "There was no way that we could afford an $8,000 or $10,000 surgery on top of what we have already spent," Privette said. The family told WRAL News they filed a report with the Wake County Sheriff's Office and spoke with animal control. As of Thursday night, there are no suspects.. "We are working with Animal Control to evaluate the circumstances and determine the appropriate next steps in the investigation," the Wake County Sheriff's Office said in a statement to WRAL News. Privette hopes the shooter is caught soon, so her family can feel safe in their home again. Anyone with information about Henry's shooting is asked to contact the Wake County Sheriff's Office. The Privette family has started a GoFundMe.

Here's What We Know	[4/25/2025] Nearly two weeks after a man was stabbed at his North Raleigh home, his death has led to a murder charge for the woman accused of assaulting him. Jashell Ireland, 39, of Raleigh was originally charged with assault with a deadly weapon with the intent to kill or inflict serious injury in the April 12 stabbing of Christian Rovelo Paz, 43, police said. But Paz died from his injuries Friday, and Ireland's charge has been upgraded to murder. Police were called to Paz's home in the 1900 block of North Hills Drive just before 1:30 a.m. that morning, according to a Raleigh Police Department release. Paz had been stabbed multiple times in the torso and neck, Ireland's arrest warrant states. Ireland was arrested that same day and held in the Wake County jail with bond set at $500,000, court records show. Her murder charge had yet to be uploaded to the online court records system as of Friday afternoon, so it wasn't clear if her bond would change. Ireland was previously charged with simple assault in Wake County in 2016, but that charge was dismissed by the district attorney's office, according to court records.

753	4/26/25	6:30 PM	Alexis Stevens & David Aaro	The Atlanta Journal-Constitution	GA		Columbia County	I-20	Shooting	Officials Identify Deputy Killed in Shooting During East Georgia Traffic Stop	One deputy was killed and a second remains in critical condition after being shot in the face during a traffic stop Saturday in east Georgia, according to the Columbia County Sheriff's Office. The deputy killed was identified Sunday as Brandon Sikes, the sheriff's office said. At about 6:30 p.m., deputies were attempting a traffic stop on a motor home allegedly driven by James Blake Montgomery on I-20 between exits 193 and 194, just outside of Augusta, Columbia County Sheriff Clay Whittle said during a press conference Sunday. Montgomery was initially cooperative as responding deputies informed he was wanted and that they needed to serve him with a temporary protective order. But as two of the deputies then turned to walk back to their vehicle, Montgomery opened fire with an 9mm AR pistol that had been converted to an automatic weapon, the sheriff said. Deputy Gavin White, also identified Sunday, was injured after being shot once in the face, the sheriff said. White remains in critical condition and medical staff were operating on his sinus and oral cavity to remove bullet fragments and "save as much as they can," Whittle said. "He is able to communicate to them and has the use of both his hands and feet," the sheriff said. "That is a positive sign, but he is going to take a long time to recover." Sikes had been with the sheriff's office since 2018. He is survived by his wife, Amber, who is also an employee there, the sheriff said. Montgomery was eventually found dead in the camper after two deputies returned fire, but the sheriff said it was still unclear how he died. Whittle said he hoped that the autopsies of Montgomery and Sikes would give them some more answers. Inside his motor home, investigators found pipe bombs, and another type of bomb that had been rigged with a remote switch, officials said. The GBI and sheriff's office are still investigating the case.

The DeKalb County Police Department said they responded to a report of a person shot at around 5:20 a.m. along the 4600 block of Longman Way. “Investigators determined this started earlier in the morning when there was a shooting inside the home,” police said in a statement. “Officers were able to rescue multiple other people from the home through an upstairs window,” adding that three were taken to the hospital. It is unclear why they needed to be rescued, or if this was some sort of hostage situation. One neighbor told Atlanta News First she heard half a dozen gunshots around 5:30 a.m. “I went to the window and saw a lot of police activity, and that is when I began to see them bringing people out of the window through a ladder,” neighbor Tori Bethel said. “I’m assuming that they brought them out because they were afraid to go downstairs and pass by whoever may have been in there shooting.” She said she saw multiple people climbing down from the second-story window on a ladder, and a young woman with her baby came out of the front door. “Then they did bring a young man out in handcuffs,” Bethel said. Investigators are gathering evidence and talking to witnesses to identify the suspect, police said. Bethel said she doesn’t know exactly what happened in the house, but she’s keeping everyone in her thoughts. “I am glad that they made it out safe, especially the baby. I’m sure they’re gonna be traumatized for a while, so my prayers are with them,” she said.
