モント ゴメリ	12/17/201 2	銃器使用の事 件	Alabama Legislature may make carrying concealed handguns easier  In the wake of Friday's elementary school shootings in Connnecticut, some lawmakers around the country are beginning to consider whether gun laws need tightening. It's a conversation that will take place against a trend in some states of moving in the other direction toward making it easier to carry guns, legally. In Alabama, the only gun legislation on the House of Representatives' agenda so far for 2013 is a bill removing sheriffs' discretion in issuing permits to carry a concealed handgun, according to a Madison County lawmaker. State Rep. Phil Williams, R-Huntsville, said the bill is on a House agenda recently approved by an agenda-setting committee in Montgomery for the upcoming session. "It'll get a fast track" by being on the official agenda, he said.
