<ruby>要旨<rt>ようし</rt></ruby>：A King George County man was in federal court Wednesday, accused of using his smartphone to persuade an underage girl in Oregon into taking and sending him lewd images of herself.

The 25-year-old was charged Monday with production of child pornography. If convicted, he faces a mandatory minimum term of 15 years and a maximum of 30 years in prison. At a brief hearing Wednesday, a U.S. Magistrate Judge found probable cause a crime was committed and permitted the man to be released pending further proceedings once electronic monitoring can be arranged. According to an FBI affidavit filed in the case, on March 3 police in Oregon investigated a complaint that a 15-year-old girl was inappropriately communicating with an older man who used the name, "Scott Mclovin," with her smartphone. Police allege "Scott Mclovin" was the King George man. The girl told investigators that the two talked about sexual things and that she sent him naked pictures of herself and he sent a naked picture of himself to her. An FBI special agent testified at Wednesday's hearing that a search warrant was obtained and the suspect's residence was searched June 11. He was taken into custody by the King George Sheriff's Office on charges of attempted sexual exploitation of two 12-year-old girls in Washington State. Reportedly, at least 100 photos of naked young females were found on the suspect's phone. Five photos of the 15-year-old Oregon girl were found on both her phone and the suspect's phone. http://www.timesdispatch.com/news/state-regional/king-george-man-charged-with-producing-child-porn/article_64e1588c-a2a7-5b02-b9ae-bdc662435ab0.html
