^{ようし}要旨 : Tuscaloosa County Metro Homicide Unit, said two women in their early 20's drove to the Forrester Garden apartment complex in Tuscaloosa around 7 o'clock Wednesday morning to buy marijuana. One of the women stayed in a car outside while the other went inside an apartment to buy the drugs. Reportedly, at least three people were waiting inside the apartment. The woman was robbed at gunpoint of two cell phones and less than $30 then sexually assaulted, investigators said. She was able to leave the apartment and get back into her car, and as she was driving away, someone opened fire and hit the vehicle with at least two shots. Later Wednesday morning, a man and woman arrived at DCH Regional Medical Center in Tuscaloosa. The man had been shot in his side, and he told police that he'd dropped a handgun earlier that day and accidentally shot himself. He was injured in the same area as the morning's drug sale gone bad, and investigators said eventually evidence and the alleged rape victim tied the injured man to the earlier crime. The suspect eventually admitted he was involved in the incident and told investigators that he accidentally shot himself after the two women drove away. He was charged with first-degree rape and first-degree robbery and taken to the Tuscaloosa County Jail.
